TRELAND'S MISGOVERNMENT.

Sometimes figures are more eloquent than words. The new official census of Great Britain shows that while fifty years ago there were 8,195,124 souls in Ireland, there are now only WE desire to call the attention of 4,706,161 souls—a loss of about three of facts is that the north of the island number of abandoned homesteads and dwellings in all Ireland has increased 12 per cent. The Irish land bill, if rings tooy scamper off to their arithmetic there be any virtue in it, passed none too soon. It will take much good government to replace in small part what bad government has wantonly destroyed. The evil done can never be fully atoned for.

There is something cheerful in the sight hat meets one's eyes to-day. Here and here he meets a group of school on dren, weighted with books, states and other edueager excitement and very evidently revacation and many of abom were loath to see its term grow aborter and the time of work draw near. And yet when the school day actually comes and the school beli and spelling with as much alacrity as if the books were do'ls or base ball bats. There is an immense amount of enthusiasm expressed on the faces and in the speach of our school children of all ages to-day And for the typical laggard, "creeping like soull unwillingly to school," one would have to search long and fruitlessly

Of course Shanardoah children do not all love school. It is not the nature of every child nor, perhaps, of many children so to do. The eminent Edward Everet Hale has said, in a recont magazine article, that he always hated school and was en couraged to bate it. And, strange as such words sound from one of the deeper students and most widely read scholars of the age, they probably pretty accurately express the rendments of many of the aptest pupils of our schools. It was Dr Hale's batred of school, he tells us, that made him apply himself more diligently September, as the site will thereafter be He knew his lessons must be learned, and be made basic to learn them, that the at horred task might be as speedily as possible finished. Those of our papils who love school will learn readily enough. The discipling that was applied in Dr. Hale's case make even those who lean toward w the head hove of the

> The children who hate school in the abstract are the most entbusiastic pupils to day. Ask the teachers if it is not so. Th boys who are the most unruly and the girls who refuse to study are apparently the most eager to begin the school year. They do not really love to study. The first tenminute reces of the new term will be to them one of the banpiest tea minutes ever known. And yet their a tual delight over school's beginning far exceeds that of the more demurely studious com adea.

Why can't this eager cuthuriasm be always maintained? Why need it wear away and the secret pleasure of andy-to the boys and girls in question will peve openly admit it is a pleasure—be the perennial substitute for the glinding drudgery that seems sere to set in next

o. Perhaps they will see that a how whto tes mathematics cannot be made to adore hem, and he may nevertheless he made very profedent in them. Perhaps they will take the one from the activity of two or that lazy boy to-day and endeavor to keep him active all year. Perbana they will ! y to impress on their pupils that trite but wholesome lesson that the more diligantly they work the briefer will be the hated labor. And thus, perhaps, even like Dr. Hale, they will reach a period when detested study will become unconsciously a delight. We will at least hope so.

And let us hope that the relations of parents and pupils will not be marred during the ensuing term sa they were during the last. Let parents act with forebearance and, should they feel called upon to inquire in complaints made to them by children, let them do so with a spirit of fairness and not pronounce guilty upon anyone until a full investigation is made. With a spirit of harmony prevailing between parent and teacher the child can gain much. But the influence of home and is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the school room must be combined before which gives mental and bodily strength.

NECROLOGY.

Death of Director of the Poor Kane.

Director of the Poor Charles B. Kane fled at his residence in Port Carbon on Saturday evening, after an illness of several weeks. Inflammation of the bowels was the cause of death.

Mr. Kane was a young man, being but 20 years of age. He was an exceedingly opular young man, as attested by the orilliant victory he schleved last fall when he ran against Joseph Nichter, of Pottsville, for the Poor Directorship.

The deceased left a wife and two children. He was a member of Camp 184 and Grant Commandery, P. O. S. of A., Odd Fellows, Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Good Will Hose Company of Pottaville.

The funeral will take place to-morrow, at 230 p. m. Interment at Port Carbon, back" a real genuine back bone. This is Charles T. Gibson, of town, is a brotherin-law of the decessed.

While John Strobulski, a First ward will imitate the mock and lowly Jesus Hungarian who keeps a boarding house, was absent from his house with his wife yesterday afternoon, his trunk was broken open and $240 in cash was stolen. Upon discover ng his loss Strobulski questioned his coarders and all but one signified a willingness to go before the Polish priest and swear he did not take the money. Strobuskithen applied to 'Squire Monaghan for rolled. He wanted a warrant issued sga ast the man who declined to swear. He did not want to arrest the man, but wanted a warrant issued to compel him to go with the other boarders before the priest and swear he did not take the money. Of course the 'Squire could issue no such warrant and at last account the boarding oss was still minus his money
